Details: The life of H. Hanson, a CPA, changed the moment he "took back his power" and started following his dream of being a singer songwriter. The narration of a very personal journey unfolds in H's songs, speaking directly to the part of each of us that is searching for a connection to something deeper. He tells us stories of love, loss, family ties and struggles and an unwavering quest for the spiritual perspective. Inspired by the song-writers of the sixties and seventies like Bob Dylan, James Taylor and Jackson Browne, H began writing songs and performing when he was sixteen. Although he played in college coffeehouses like his idols, the upheaval of the late sixties drove him to seek life's deeper meaning. He eventually incorporated the meditation and spiritual practice learned during those years into raising his family and becoming a CPA. Although his voice and guitar lay in the background of his life while raising his four kids, his life long passion for writing and performing reawakened in the late 90s when he sold his CPA practice and began actively pursuing a career as a songwriter. In October 2001 he released his first CD, "Journey", produced by Rob Friedman at Little Life Studios in New York City. This initial project reflects not only H's talents as a musician and singer songwriter, but in these times of unrest, he gives encouragement to "stay the course" as we follow our own inner callings. H now lives in Asheville, North Carolina with his wife and plays at various venues in the area. H has just released a new 2 song CD, also produced by Rob Friedman. "Hope for You to Heal" was written for the parents of autistic children and he was fortunate to sing it up in Boston at the Defeat Autism Now! Conference on April 17th. "It's Got to Be You" speaks to all of us, right now at this critical moment in time for humanity and the planet earth we call our home.
