Violoncello de colores 3 was born from a cello method that focuses on making the learning process easy and enjoyable. Despite the fact that it is a teaching method, CDs are designed for the public in general, and is a perfect way to identify the instrument with beautiful traditional tunes as well as to enjoy poetry with the most delicate and touching songs by the author. Among the poets we have William Blake, Amado Nervo, Jos Emilio Pacheco, Antonio Machado, Vernica Murgua, and Jos Juan Tablada among others. Pilar Gadea obtained a Bachelor's Degree in Piano Performance from the National Conservatory of Music in Mexico City and a Bachelor's Degree in Cello Performance at the Guildhall School of Music and Drama in London, England, under a Mexican/British scholarship. During her stay in London, she also took several different courses with Steven Isserlis and Christophe Coin, among others, and she worked with The New Theatre, touring Greece and England. She moved to Barcelona, Spain, to work as the assistant of Lluís Claret, teaching and studying at L'Escola de Música de Barcelona and L'Escola de Música Pau Casals. During this time, she performed with Barcelona 216 and The Palau de la Música Chamber Orchestra. Later, she was appointed to the position of cello teacher at the Ataulfo Argenta Conservatory in Santander, Spain. Upon her return to Mexico City, she played at the Mexico City's Philharmonic Orchestra for two years, and currently, her musical life is dedicated to chamber music, as well as theater and dance projects. She continues to teach at the school she founded: Violonchelo de Colores, and she has written three books of a cello method by the same name, which have had particular success in Spain, Venezuela, Colombia and recently at the U.S.A.
