----- Bail Money (2003), is the hot new album from ex-pimp and convicted felon Todd G. Hailing from Eugene, the states second largest city is home to the University of Oregon and a growing urban music scene led by To Die 4 Records. This album has no record label image, or glamorous story behind it. The album is simply life through the eyes of the artist. The album features the hit singles "If You know Like I Know" featuring Bosko and "Everything's Gonna Be Alright" both Produced by one of the Pacific Northwest's up and coming producers Nicky Sick Strings. The album features guest appearances from Jay Tee of N2Deep, J.E.T., Bullet, Arjay, Jazz, with production from Mo Betta, Big Ice Oral Bee, Philly Blunt, Bay Dre, Todd G himself. With 18 hot new songs, catering to the lifestyle and everyday situations in the life of a White Pimp, this album is not only quality music and entertainment, but it is also an educational experience. "Bail Money" is also home to underground hits like "This Is Portland" featuring Bullet Jazz, "Verbally Abusive", and "Todd G. Got Her" a tribute to women who have crossed over to the life of prostitution. The album ends with a bonus track from R&B singer and label mate Arjay with the smash hit "Street Life", where he sings about his own Federal incarceration. This album is guaranteed to be one of the best street albums to ever come out of the Pacific Northwest region. BAIL HAS BEEN POSTED. ----- WE ARE #1 @ CDBABY
