A journey through different genres of electronic music which has no boundaries, catching melodies and futuristic sounds, rich in tones and atmosphere which will grab your mood and take you into unknown dimensions. 14 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: House, ELECTRONIC: Trance Details: Kai Pirinha has been making music himself since 1980. At that time Kai tried out the harder edge of motion when joining a hard rock band as their lead singer. In 1990 the project Cosmoogony came to life with intention of producing deep, mysterious and inspiring ambient tunes, with that big flow indigenous to the 70s. In 1992 a short TV documentary about creating and performing techno music by Oliver Lieb (LSG) set the controls of Kais machines (at the time just one master keyboard and a four track machine) towards a new direction called trance. Since then Kai has produced lots of tracks, playing everything live, except for the rythm section, which was programmed (the use of samples was still lightyears away). In 1997 Kai started his own radio show at a local station (Radio Flora 106,5 Mhz), called Deep Orbit. In the show he soon introduced his own tracks, and later live appearances of him and other artists, particularly DJ Tom Chiron, with whom he founded the project FEU. This project was dedicated to experimental electronica and ambient vibes. FEU (Frequency Exploration Unit), starting off at the radio show soon became a live act, performing all over Germany. The next incisive development was the arrival of a PC in Kais sound laboratory in 1998. This opened an entire universe of possibilities for the creation of electronic music. In 1999 Kai started an additional career as a live DJ (Kai Pirinha), not with the intention of becoming part of the scene but to have yet another opportunity to put an audience under his spell, as well as introducing his own deep tunes. His current solo projects COSMOZ and DVD (Die Vierte Dimension) were strongly influenced by the housey style of his DJ set, which is currently a rich blend of choice minimal house and progressive trance.
