Lonely tremolo guitars, B-3 organs and accordion help describe the sound of LA-based Americana roots songwriter Kaz Murphy, whose former incarnations include drummer for poet Allen Ginsberg. He delivers up a batch of tasty new songs on his second solo CD 11 MP3 Songs ROCK: Americana, COUNTRY: Traditional Country Details: Three years in the making, DEVIL IN THE BARN, Kaz Murphy's new self-released CD is now out, distributed by Burnside and produced by Paul duGre and Tucker Martine. Besides his mid-'80's stint as drummer for poet Allen Ginsberg (Santa Fe NM), and 15 years as a playwright and recording artist based in Seattle, the last six years has kept Kaz busy with the critically-acclaimed release of his debut solo CD ONE HAPPY CAMPER (LiquidCity 1997); as co-author of Vienna-based multimedia firm No Frontiere's design book "In The Place of Coincidence" that became a top seller for Gingko Press; and club tours of southern Europe, before relocating to Los Angeles in 2000 with his wife and long-time musical partner, Jacque Grad. Kaz finished recording Devil In The Barn with some of the great players that he had on his first release, plus a new crew of respected LA and Texas roots rock musicians. Along with Kaz's ten vibrant originals is a roots cover of Jimi Hendrix's "Castles Made of Sand".
