Following up the semi-eponymously titled debut album Crazyed Out, the band Crazyed Outlook artfully dodges the sophomore slump with Double Talk, a fiercely dynamic power pop contradiction. Produced by Derek Euston of The Green Room, each track offers sonic surprises and distinct edginess, while flaunting infectious pop hooks. The world we live in makes sense only when you understand its complexities, double standards and understated hypocrisies. Double Talk embraces this premise with a cohesiveness that is equally audacious and introspective. The album begs to be listened to in its entirety. Standout tracks include Society Says, Self Sympathy and Breakup Songs Are Boring.
