Details: As a composer, singer and songwriter I write my music from a "life-lived" perspective using my own life's experiences, whether direct or indirect as a palette for penning my new ballads. I was trained in music composition and music theory for many years before ever setting foot inside a recording studio. Once I did, I knew thats what I wanted to do- write and record songs that share my feelings, my emotions and my thoughts with others who feel the same way about life, family, God and country. I also have written and composed various instrumental albums with a virtual or digital orchestra using keyboards, samplers and sound modules that sound and feel just like a real orchestra. Again, my instrumentals derive from a very spiritual and inspirational background- very easy to listen to while driving, eating, talking or just resting. I believe that music should always find a resting place inside the human heart, filling it with hope, compassion and love for our fellow pilgrims while we are on this earth and on this incredible journey called life.
