A startling collection of womanly songs, deeply original darkly traditional. Beautifully crafted with voice, guitar, oboe, kantele flute, expertly produced by Robert Harbron. Wistfulness, sadness, beauty hope. Hers is an unusual and intriguing soundscape, rejoicing in a subtle and unpretentious use of a variety of instrumental colours and timbres...with unobtrusive production by Robert Harbron, there's a homespun, primitive immediacy to the proceedings that's really attractive... Kate's songwriting is honest and succinct, understated and refreshingly non-self-indulgent,...The standout tracks for me are highly contrasted: on one hand the disturbing, stark and broodingly strange Midnight, which tells of a modern-day haunting, and on the other the comforting haven of the beautiful Beyond The Silence. Kate's work is quietly stunning..."
