If you've been on the Internet for more than a few minutes, you're most likely aware of just how difficult it is to achieve top search engine rank. And just as likely, you've probably come up against the same old brick wall... Are you tired of having to write all your own web page content? Has the task of creating keyword-rich pages become unbearable? Have you grown frustrated over all the conflicting "expert" SEO advice? Is your current traffic-generating method failing to bring in maximum results? Do you wish there was an easier method of getting high page rank? If you answered yes to any one of those questions, you need to listen up because... There's ONE major factor that will not only alleviate each of those problems listed above, it will practically "guarantee" top search engine page rank. And what exactly is this miraculous little jewel? Three simple words... Really Simple Syndication. Or, as we in the "business" commonly refer to it... RSS. And in case you're not already familiar with RSS, here's a brief rundown...
