Details: This is the music that I describe as Galax or Mt. Airy bluegrass - the sound and style that evoke memories of Ted Lundy, Larry Richardson, Roy McMillan, Joe Edd King, Joe Greene and countless others. The rhythm and timing are solid, the instrumental work is clean and tasteful, and the vocals are heartfelt. The music is hard-edged with a live flavor, not honed to perfection by repeated takes and overdubs. Big Country Bluegrass is in the forefront in keeping authentic, traditional bluegrass alive. Kerry Hay - Hay Holler Records 1997 This is an excellent recording. The music, the harmony, the timing is perfect. Big Country Bluegrass is a favorite at the Carter Fold. I believe this band will go far in the bluegrass field. Janette Carter - Director Carter Fold Hiltons, Virginia Here is a great recording a person should have in their collection. This type of bluegrass music needs to be preserved in a professional manner and Big Country Bluegrass is doing just that. Harold Mitchell - Bluegrass JD/MC Galax, Virginia During their last several years, Big Country Bluegrass has built a fine reputation for the best in traditional bluegrass music. The core group of Tommy and Teresa Sells, Larry Pennington and Alan Mastin is not only rock solid with their music, they're equally strong with their taste and knowledge of the music's roots. The band's past lead singers include such names as Udell McPeak and James King; however, it is with their present lead singer and fiddler, Jeff Michael, that the band has crystallized its purest traditional sound. Jeff has deeply studied the music, following it back to its guiding force, Bill Monroe. His bluesy instrumental talents, and his moving, soulful lead and harmony singing highlight an award winning band sound that is the very heart and soul of bluegrass music. Dale Morris - Musician/Educator Elk Creek, Virginia
