ROCK: Modern Rock, ROCK: Progressive Rock Details: A young woman of fierce independence and courage, Edie is a force to be reckoned with. She has taken on much responsibility and many risks for a woman of her youth, and now her dream of becoming a singer/songwriter is being realized as she plunges headlong into creative waters. She left home at age eighteen to live and work in Italy, Paris, and Australia before finally coming to Los Angeles to relentlessly pursue her music career. In fact, she gives credit to her travels for her take-no-prisoners, driven approach to her art. She strongly feels that only through living freely and without barriers has she been able to give rise to her creative self. At the same time, Edie has an intense love and respect for her family. She tells of how her family always respected her as an individual as well as a daughter and thanks them for the self-confidence that this instilled in her. Edie craves fluidity and freedom but still cherishes her stable roots. This freedom and fluidity is reflected in her writing and her performances. The moments she spends on stage are her most cherished. Edie throws herself wholeheartedly into her performances, holding nothing back and giving herself over entirely to her music and to the audience. She has an uncanny way of bringing tangible passion and depth to a song and always captures the room. Edie is equally dedicated to her songwriting, and brings to it unsurpassed enthusiasm and love. Her thoughts on writing and performing music are simple and reflect her intense focus on her art: "There is nothing else in the world. If I'm doing it right, everything else simply ceases to exist."
