He got started by hearing a Fleetwood Mac song at a record store and the chorus got stuck in his little head. When he got home he went over to his grandmother's hand-me-down piano and picked out what was in head. He has been writing and playing ever since. Being classically trained but growing up in the "classic rock" environment gives James a unique approach and style to his music. That, along with some of Austins finest musician, has helped to make an incredible album in "sixes sevens."
