Since she was able to talk singing was second nature to her. Growing up she would sing for anyone who would listen. Her favorite moments were at family and friend get togethers where she would let loose and belt out a song to all who would listen. Jana also loved to play piano and violin and realized at a young age creating music was her gift. As she grew older she constantly wrote music and continued to sing and perform and realized she also had a natural ear for sound, so she decided to utilize this and learn all she could about voice and sound. She became a vocal coach and began mixing sound for local bands. Jana Lee sang gospel music for many years and then decided to go solo and sang with Silk-N-Sword for six years, recorded many demos, and there was a CD release in 1997 (True Identity). Jana continued with Silk-N-Sword until 1999 and then focused more on teaching and mixing sound for local bands while continuing to write and record her own music. In 2002 she decided to go solo again and the CD (Close My Eyes) was released in Fall 2004. Jana Lee is currently performing and working on a new CD which will be available early 2006.
