Adult contemporary pop with a twist. 4 MP3 Songs POP: Pop, URBAN/R&B: R&B Pop Crossover Details: ARTIST BIO Born and raised in South America, currently residing in Europe, singer/songwriter/actor/model AMARU is well on his way to establishing himself as an all around entertainer. From music to film, to animation and modeling, what started out as a dream is slowly but surely starting to become reality. While music is AMARU's first love, it was his acting career that took off first in 1996, when he was cast to portray the late Luciano Pavarotti in a game show promo. After that he starred in many (independent) feature films, many commercials, he also did some print work and animation. In 2004 AMARU was cast as (the voice of) the lead character in the critically acclaimed animated short 'Be HIV Free: The story of Bobo'. The film was meant to educate children in Africa about the dangers of AIDS and how to protect oneself. After the huge success of part one, none other than the famous Richard Branson of Virgin decided to partially finance the sequel, which was another success! In mid 2007 AMARU traveled to Chicago, IL (USA) to re-visit his long time love: music! The results of that effort are now a fact! The style is pop with a slight twist of R&B and a touch of Latin. The lyrics were all written by AMARU. He also took care of the vocal arrangements, he co-produced and sang both leading as well as backing vocals.
