'Musical Variations on Life' by RJ Lannan, NewAgeReporter If you want an earful of music that is peaceful, yet uplifting then you can't do better than "Unexpected Journey", the newest release from pianist composer David Mount. This solo piano recording is overflowing with bright, colorful stories of every day life set into song. Waking with the sun and saying goodnight to the moon and everything in between is the inspiration for David's opulent compositions. Raindrops splashing in puddles that reflect the gray, somber days are present in the opening number Water Dance. As the serious tune echoes and returns, the drops plop and spray making tiny rings of water that ripple and play along with the music. It is as if the rain ever stops it would be a sad thing. A very remarkable tune on "Unexpected Journey" is called Early Morning. Bright and fresh as a new summer day, the music holds promise and hope as we continue our outing. When the sun peeks over the horizon with its first pale golden rays there is light and warmth. There is new green growth and there a ripening taking place on the land and in our lives. This is one of my favorites. Sometimes love is better expressed without the use of ordinary words. Hence, we have music. With a title like My Son, you can expect a lot of emotion, a little bit of confusion and a great deal of pride. This very heartfelt tune expresses it all with the expectation that if our children can be happy, then we can be happy too. It is every parent's wish. He might be your mentor, a confidant or your brother. She might be a co-worker, an old school chum or your mother. They could all very well be your Bestest Friend. David plays a poignant piece in recognition of your buddy, your pal, your mate who is always there to help you through the gauntlet of life. Sometimes life gets complicated. Unforeseen things happen and difficulties arise. There's just so many ways you can tackle a problem, and then there is the Final Approach. The time comes when perhaps the answer is to love until it hurts. This is a very pensive piece with a temperamental melody, but Mount's light touch softens the edges and smoothes out the wrinkles. Fall Classic is a punchy-jaunty contemporary tune that commemorates autumn with its signal for change, all its vivid color, and the beginning, not the end of a new season. David's lively composition is a whirling dervish of golden leaves, blustery days and sparkling clear nights. Some really good riffs in this one. The last cut is called Kauai Sunset. Kauai, Hawaii's most northwestern island is also called the Garden Isle and it is deeply cut with canyons, caves, fertile plains and rugged mountains. It is also the last point (except for Niihau) where you can watch the final rays of the golden sun liquefy into the cobalt ocean. The transformation is sad and beautiful at the same time just like this tune. David's contemporary instrumental music is rife with emotion, relaxing in nature and inspirational without being obvious. You can put on this CD and take your own Unexpected Journey in your heart and mind and you will be right where you want to be. --RJ Lannan, NewAgeReporter Buy your copy TODAY! ONLY $13.99
