Funkily recorded keyboard based experimental neo classical compositions. Kinda. 14 MP3 Songs in this album (59:42) ! Related styles: CLASSICAL: Tone Poem, ELECTRONIC: Virtual Orchestra Details: "Adagio Fishing" is a group of compositions done awhile back (1994). Although abit tonally rough in places and funkily recorded into an ancient 4-track machine, (who has since passed on), i've decided to pitch it out there anyway. I still like it. Warts and all. Instruments used are of the period: a couple of digital keyboards. Wooden drums. Short wave radio. During that time i was experimenting with superimposing various physical geometries found in Nature over different tone mandala, to map out patterns for harmonic progressions and melody. Flowers, skulls, leaves, photo of a slithering snake path through sand, a human hand, bird tracks in mud, anything that beckoned really. Why not an old shoe or a ladies bikini bottom? Why not. Sit on my Mandala baby. Kind of a backwoods musical Glass Bead Game of sorts. I was reading books along the line of Sensitive Chaos by Theodor Schwenk, trying to conjure inspiration and direction from such writings. Cut me a slice of the Golden Section please. Correlating the vibe. A vibes indigo. F is red. C is Green. Tone crumbs through the dark forest. Anyway, a few of the compositions were involved in this kind of formula making. Turn it up. Tweak your system. Enjoy it if you can. My name is Dayday Moemoe and i approve of this message.
