Phillip Sneed, Story of the Year (Maverick Records) The big, beautiful voice that comes out of this gorgeous, petite package always astounds and inspires me. Jeff Seibenick (One The Lot) Ella G'Sell bespeaks passion, dichotomy. Embracing contradiction, but never compromise, Ella is soulful, genuine, and peaceful. She is a voice of unity and hope. And this is only the beginning. Or is it? Named both after St. Elizabeth of Hungary and a song by the rock band Kiss, Elizabeth G'Sell was from the very start an embodiment of virtue tested in fire. A shy, sweet girl, Elizabeth was friendly in a true, unconditional manner, but found it easier to perform for thousands of people than hold a conversation with one individual. Song gave her a voice and that voice gave her courage. Elizabeth grew to be a strong woman and through her experiences, she embraces all of humanity in all walks of life. Ella, as she's now called by her fans and loved ones, channels this sincerity into compelling verse. . She has toured throughout North America and Europe, performing vocals and the flute. When she is not in song, Ella is a painter.

Her collection has been shown throughout the United States and often reflect her music in its visual imagery. Theology emerges as a major theme in both her life and daring lyrics; Ella respects all spiritualities which aim to augment a truer compassion between peoples and faiths. Living in Los Angeles, CA with her Maltese, Sebastian, Ella is busy in the studio and on the strip, singing her story: one unique, heroic, and true. Ella tells it like it is: "I owe all of my songs to the people who have touched my life, whether for a short glimpse or as an old friend. Much love and know that you all have heaven within you." Listening to Ella sing her heart out, this seems genuinely possible.
