Rock Details: Gene Moore is no stranger to the music business. While fronting the band Restless, Gene sang the NY Giants Superbowl victory song, "Go Giants Go" in 1986. This song held the #1 slot on the K-Rock Countdown for 3 consecutive weeks. Recently, he composed, performed and recorded the music/vocal track of the US Soccer stadium chant titled, "Goals, Goals Goals." The song plays over the sound system at every U.S. stadium multiple times during soccer matches. He has also composed and performed many music scores for radio TV commercials including a Xerox radio campaign featuring the voice of James Garner as well as an AT&T television campaign featuring the voice of Dick Cavett. In the political arena, Gene has scored soundtracks for election campaign videos for candidates including Tom Ridge, John Ashcroft, Bob Dole and believe it or not, the George W. Bush presidential campaign video. He also co-wrote a song made famous by Ace Frehley from Kiss titled "Insane" which has appeared on at least 2 of Ace's solo efforts as well as MTV's Metal Mania.
