She often builds metaphors between milestones in her life and nature, crafting vivid mental pictures. Her songs masterfully combine exquisite vocals and warm guitar. Her lyrics are poetic, sometimes a little humorous, but mostly not. Linda writes in equal parts from the heart and the head and her songs cover a nice range of subject of matter. Juicy love songs to moody been-done-wrong songs to introspective and spiritual discovery songs, this album has it all! Musically, Linda has been influenced by many genres of music and weaves bits of them into something all its own. A little folk, A dash of rock, pinch of blues, and just the tiniest hint of alterno-twang. Her musical road began very early in life when she began to play the piano by ear as a young child. She was classically trained in piano and voice for twelve years, accumulating many awards at the local and state levels and leaving a few infuriated music teachers in her wake because of a refusal to just read the music. She then decided to branch out on her own as a self-taught guitarist to save the sanity of music teachers everywhere. Linda grew up in Louisiana and still draws from her many experiences there. She still has a fascination with the deep south, its quirky, warped culture, and all the aspects of nature found there. This fascination resurfaces time and again in her songs. Linda lived in Northwest Arkansas for about 4 years and has just relocated to Asheville, NC. Always known for her prolific writing, she's penned several new songs since her relocation and is steadily making a name for herself in the Southeast. Linda's music is now being played on several independent radio stations in the U.S., Canada, and abroad including: KUMD - Duluth, MN 99.7 FM - Brisbane, Australia CKLN 88.1 - Toronto CJRT 91.3 - Saskatchewan WTIP - Grand Marais, MN KPRI - 102.1 FM - San Diego, CA WSCL - Salisbury, MD CJLX 92.3 FM - Belleville, ON 783 kHz AM - Belmont, New Zealand "Kudzu" was also featured on "Jack and Jill Radio", a really cool neighborhood radio station out of Sunrise, FL.
