Dear Reader, How many times have you sat around a table with family reminiscing about experiences you've shared in the past? Your cousin Freddy recalls the time you all went camping and you fell in the lake trying to save your brand new fishing pole. Your sister pipes up and reminds you of the time you all baked cooked and almost started a fire in the kitchen! Someone mentions Uncle Joe and how he was always the life of the party and how you all miss him so much. Amidst all the revelry and nostalgia, another family member suggests that someone needs to record all this information for posterity. A reminder to the children of who they are and where they came from.
