After being diagnosed with cancer early in his life, he thought not only could it kill him, but also kill his dreams of sharing his gift with the world. After undergoing a year of treatment and surviving the numerous surgerys, he realized that he almost never got to live out his dreams, or even see his kids grow up. At that time it seemed to him that adversity was following him around personally. But never the less with the grace of GOD, he managed to make a full recovery and go on to become the man he is today. Not long after, CHIPS signed with an independent label that soon went out of business. With all these things in mind, CHIPS started to live each day like it was his last, so he started his own entertainment company and released his album SUCCESS BEFORE DEATH independently, and still has so much more to accomplish, so just remember as long as we are alive anything is possible.
