Jung noted that the distinction between introversion and extroversion is introverts are people who prefer their internal world of thoughts, feelings, fantasies, dreams, and so on, while extroverts prefer the external world of things and people and activities. Synchronicity is the occurrence of two events that are not linked causally, nor linked teleologically, yet are meaningfully related. Most psychologists would call things coincidences, or try to show how they are more likely to occur than we think through the collective unconscious. The final principle is the principle of entropy. This is the tendency for oppositions to come together, and so for energy to decrease, over a person's lifetime. Jung borrowed the idea from physics, where entropy refers to the tendency of all physical systems to "run down," that is, for all energy to become evenly distributed. If you have, for example, a heat source in one corner of the room, the whole room will eventually be heated. Butterflychology is the ability to perceive the world as it really exists with an understanding that there are no limitations once you travel life's path with clarity and simplicity.
