1970's top 40 radio inspired pop, brought into the 21st century. 14 MP3 Songs POP: California Pop, POP: 70's Pop Details: Multi-instrumentalist John Ashfield has been writing and playing music since his early teens. His influences started at home, with his father being an accomplished Barbershop Quartet singer. Naturally John looked to the younger and more "happening" version of Barbershop and discovered The Osmonds, who had begun as a Barbershop group, later to become Bubblegum superstars. This began John's foray into sunny Pop/Bubblegum music. He explored other popular music for that time (early 1970's), delving in Wings, Beatles, The Partridge Family, Bobby Sherman, The 5th Dimension and anything else that was on his AM radio while summering at the Jersey shore. In high school he discovered he had an amazing voice and put it to good use in school musicals. He played in bands and continued to write. He moved onto college, winning a four year music scholarship and playing in more bands, varying instruments from keyboards to guitar to bass. He graduated college and began his "day job" as an elementary school music teacher, which he loves and still keeps. His current band, The Bobbleheads (thebobbleheads.com), has been getting some recognition in power pop music circles as the nicest, most fun group around. His teaching job and musical influences often overlap with his solo material having innocence, yet maturity while he teaches his students to play "Light and Day", by the Polyphonic Spree, "Atomic" by Blondie and "Rock around the Clock", by Bill Haley. John Ashfield currently resides in San Francisco, CA
