Their style has influences from across the spectrum but can be best associated with Coldplay, Travis, and Elliot Smith. The band values creativity holistically, which means they present more than just music. They not only add creative twists to performances, but also create everything that has the name Mindhead attached to it. From the music to the album art, the web site, and even posters. Each part represents a different aspect of the whole. It all stems from ideas birthed between the members of Mindhead and their greater community of friends.
