Bling Dynasty Bio The south has produced many successful artists in recent years, and in that tradition comes Bling Dynasty. Bizzy, Mojo, and Nolan, combine singing, rapping, and song writing talents that round out the Richmond, VA R&B Hip-Hop trio. Together since high school, the guys started down the road of doing talent shows and never looked back. "It was a little strange for us at first," says Mojo. "People didn't know what to expect seeing a black, white, and Asian kid come on stage, but when we would rip up a Boyz II Men song or Blackstreet jam, the audience always would flow with the group." "We always try to get people to really feel what we're doing on our recordings and on stage," Says Bizzy. The edginess of Hip-Hop and the soulfulness of R&B is at the root of Bling Dynasty's sound. Their influences include but, are not limited to Frank Sinatra, Tone' Toni Tony, Boyz II Men, Brian McKnight, Carl Thomas, Kim Burrell, and the Neptunes. "Each of us comes from a musical place that is a little different and that makes for something very unique," says Nolan. "Each of us actively plays a role in the creative process, from writing and arranging to producing and performing." The past year has been a busy one for Bling Dynasty. Along with performing in the Virginia and Philly areas the group has been an opening act at concerts for Lil Romeo, Nick Cannon, and Craig David, along with a performance at the Michael Jackson 30th Anniversary celebration show in New York City and his 45th Birthday Celebration in LA. The boys have also made their mark in radio when Billy Surf, the Program Director at WRVQ, Q94 in Richmond, VA heard them and asked Bling Dynasty to write two station IDs for his morning show. "The stuff was just awesome and our listeners love it." Their first single "Fallin 4 U," features Jadakiss and D Block protege', J Hood. Bling Dynasty feels all the hard work is paying off. Having worked with hit producers, such as Desmond Child (Aerosmith, Ricky Martin) Joshua Thompson (Alicia Keys, Joe, O-Town) as well as artist Olivia (J Records), and R&B greats such as Howard Hewitt and Levi Little of Blackstreet, Bling Dynasty has learned a lot from the producers and artists they have worked with, and with that knowledge, hard work and talent, "it's their time to shine".
