They decide to setup a small workstation where to begin consolidating their musical ideas. In 2004, after several changes in their style, a new sound is born, bringing their work to a more electronic vibe of deep and progressive house. Toward the end of the same year, they meet DJ and producer Simone Mencarelli aka Menca (Swift Records, Ascend, Serial Killer Vinyl), with whom they produce their first record called "Undertone" for Swift Records (Greece). This first release gets airplay in several national radios, the most important being Radio Italia Network. They come selects from some several radio for musical programs, Generation Cocktail on Radio Italia Network is one of them. In the beginning of 2005, they starts to produced some lounge and chill-out tracks, tightening a collaboration with the record label NuForm Music. Later on 2005 they begin to work to their first album "Feel The Sense", intense and harder project. In 2006, they begin to work with the producers of Zi-ko plan for some jobs and remixes and at the same time, they are collaborating with the Argentine's dj-producer Juanjo Laz aka Juanjos for some remixes of their tracks. Digital Project is not just music, but an artistic expression of the deeper feelings of their member's musical experience.
