A hip sound collage that sounds like a mix of snippets from different eras held together by syncopated beats layered crooning, barely distinguishable lyrics that only add to the incredible mystery - makes the world seem alive. 8 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: Trip Hop, ROCK: College Rock Details: From the deep woods and rocky coasts of Maine comes Graeme K. Graeme's musical career began at age 10, when he joined his elementary school's band as the only drummer. By 12, he was performing with jazz ensembles and in youth symphonies throughout New England. At 18, Graeme moved to New York City and spent the next 6 years perfecting his "off-kilter mixture of madness and melody." In the spring of 2005, he was picked as one of the ten best unsigned artists in New York City, according to CMJ magazine (cmj.com/bob), and asked to play in the "Best of the Five Boroughs" annual concert at Prospect Park. In the fall of 2006, he recorded a new album with Bill Moriarty at American Diamond Studio in Philadelphia. Bill's resume includes producing and engineering Man Man's critically acclaimed "The Man In A Blue Turban With A Face" and Dr. Dog's latest records (Easy Beat, We All Belong), along with records by Josh Ritter and Old Goats. Following the sessions at American Diamond, Graeme moved back to his home state of Maine to finish the record. The album was completed in the summer of 2007 and titled Hidden Beast. Hidden Beast is the culmination of Graeme's musical background, the "sound of the mad collagist (Mr. K.) throwing the switch and starting a massive machine that integrates sounds in an awesome haze of dirt and noise and rolling rhythm."
