Details: Cynthia Ford grew up in a small town in Northern Californias wine country, an area that well steeped in country music. At a very young age she wandered across the street while learning to play guitar she asked her neighbor to tune it up for her. She had no idea that blues legend John Lee Hooker was anyone but the nice man who had good BBQs and seemed to be able to help her out from time to time with her new instrument. She would sit on the floor with other kids and listen to him sing and play and she realized that this was exactly what she wanted to learn to do. Since then Cynthia has performed all over the world and has sold out many southern California venues, including the Hard Rock and BB Kings in Hollywood, Rustys Surf Ranch and the Edgemar Center for the Arts in Santa Monica. After attending a live performance Venice Magazine named her one of the rising stars in country music. At live shows the audience is infected with the raw emotion and playful antics. Everyone has a great time and feels at home weather its their first show or they know every word by heart. Her music reflects times of struggles and strength. She has a unique ability to translate that raw emotion into lyrics that speak to the heart. July 07 Cynthia has been featured on Yahoo.com, Yoga and Country Music by Dave Rominelli.
