The recording gives direction and a guideline on how to start a performance career, and how to cultivate relationships for ongoing prospective performances. Many musically gifted throughout the world have benefited by the online help James has provided. He relies on decades of experience and expertise in many areas of his own involvement in the music business since 1972. He's created strategies to help both the newcomer and those who've been around for some time, but are experiencing difficulty musically. James has worn many hats with his involvement in the music business! He's been a singer, songwriter, guitarist, guitar teacher, studio owner and sessions player. He's worked as an international radio program audio engineer, co-producer and announcer. He's been both a band member, and band audio engineer. He's been a small business owner and author, just to name a few! He was a 'regional category semi finalist' in a national songwriting contest. He's had songwriting contracts in New York City, and Edmonton, Alberta. Some of his recording session work has been distributed to over 50 countries. His music has been heard throughout Europe. James started writing of his experiences in 1995. He marketed a booklet and audiocassette version through classified ads and on the internet. More writing was added and the shape of a book started to emerge. He's shared two of the chapters with those online, and with much success. The two chapters are what is contained on "SUCCESS IN SONGWRITING AND PERFORMING". If you've ever had questions about songwriting, demo recordings and how to submit to record companies and publishers - this recording's just what you need! If you've always wondered about how one starts and maintains a performance career, or are having difficulty maintaining the one you've started - again, this recording is exactly what you need!
