Details: First was the eager and ambitious learning experience which was My Green VW Van and LSK in Columbus. Then on to Atlanta for a southern take on punk/folk/pop in a band called Yonder. Then the more serious Long Flat Red, and then came the angry and powerful Lydia Brownfield Trio, and then the hard and confused days in Brooklyn in Early Girl. At the same time there has always been Lydia by herself with her guitar. With her new recording out and a new one to be released in December, the writing and wandering just wont stop. So the songs continue. She plays regularly in Atlanta, New York, L.A., Boston and Columbus. "Powerful...singer Lydia Brownfield...will create a sound that is one of a kind." ...one of the cities musical bright spots. ...the potential to get people excited about going out and hearing new local music again. Jeff Clark, Creative Loafing, Atlanta, GA. ...this girl was powerful! Her voice, while somewhat reminiscent of Suzanne Vegas, was much more powerful, and she could play the hell out of that guitar, too! Keeper Fishwrapper, Vol. 3 Issue 17 ...captivating, hook-driven pop. Palmer Wood, Highpoint Magazine
