Jangle pop rock recorded in Seattle's legendary Egg studios by Johnny Sangster. The Shorewoods write snappy and clever power pop, full of hooks, guitars and a dynamite rhythm section. 14 MP3 Songs POP: Power Pop, ROCK: Modern Rock Details: An effervescent debut album by rising Seattle stars The Shorewoods. Reeling from their latest spate of radio play in such exotic ports as Portugal (thanks, BangBang), France (thank you, Pop Dreams), Germany, and, er, Syracuse, New York (thanks WXXE!), The Shorewoods invite you to sample what discerning international pop aficionados are discovering! Clever lyrics arrive in the layered vocals of songwriters Joe Lawless and Sean Bentley, amid the sumptuous interplay of 6 and 12-string guitars: jangling, chiming, buzzing, acoustic, electric. This is a guitar band, friends! Seattle music-scene veterans Mike Bristow (bass) and Jay Weaver (drums) provide the pungent rhythm, with occasional vists from keyboards, woodwinds, and tuned espresso machine. The band shares a love of power pop and their roots run deep and broad from 60s folk, 'sunshine pop,' and psychedelia to punk and ska, from complex 70s 'prog' rock to the concise, bittersweet dissonance of 21st Century 'alternative' pop. You'll bathe in nearly an hour's worth of 14 literate, melodic, danceable, power-pop gems, influenced by musicians as diverse as Elvis Costello, The Byrds, Sloan, The Jam, Wilco, Robyn Hitchcock, The dBs, XTC, Squeeze ... but always retaining a unique sound. Since 1998, the Shorewoods have performed as an electric quartet and an acoustic duo in numerous venues in the Seattle area. This studio disc, recorded at Seattle's famous Egg Studios by the Talented Mr. Johnny "Dear John Letters" Sangster, captures The Shorewoods' full, eclectic texture and oomph.
