Related styles: FOLK: Appalachian Folk, COUNTRY: Bluegrass Details: Bill and Pam Gurley, along with their daughter Macon, have released a new CD. The Gurleys is a much- anticipated addition to their previous recordings Lights of Home and October Winds and the first as a family trio. It features a blend of lush harmonies and hot picking that is sure to please old friends and new listeners alike. Bill and Pam are no strangers to music fans in Virginia. They have performed together in concerts and festivals for many years and have a loyal following. Pam is known for her lovely singing voice and Bill for his multi-instrumental talents and song writing. Having grown up in Newport News, they have made their home in the Northern Neck for sixteen years, living in the old family farmhouse. Macon grew up in a household filled with music. There were always rehearsals and jam sessions, visits by notable musicians touring through the area, and music lessons going on in the living room. She often attended large outdoor festivals and became a part of a large community of musicians and music lovers. Years later, living in New York City, that music became a link to home as she began playing the guitar and singing. When she returned to Virginia she started performing with her parents and the idea of a family recording was born. Macon used her talents in the recording studio and also designed a beautiful package for the new CD. Bill provides most of the instrumental tracks on the album playing guitars, fiddle, mandolin and banjo. Jazz bassist Jimmy Masters is heard on most of the songs. He has performed extensively with the Gurleys in live settings. Guitar wiz Stephen Bennett makes an appearance on a swing tune. Bluesman Tray Eppes adds some guitar and harmonica on one of Bills original numbers. Old friend Gene Elders, long time fiddler for George Strait and Lyle Lovett, plays his distinctive five-string violin on several songs as well. Rob Ulsh at Mastersound recorded the project. Rob has worked with artists as diverse as Glen Campbell and Justin Timberlake. The Gurleys stay busy with other pursuits as well. Bill is in demand as a private teacher and solo artist. Pam operates the Tavern Restaurant in Heathsville, Virginia, blending her lifelong love of good food and hospitality. Macon has her own jewelry and graphic design business, Ironweed Studio in Williamsburg, Virginia.
