

Affiliates Are Like Fingerprints

The bottom line, when providing your affiliates with promotional tools, is that the more options you give them, the more likely they will find something that they'll want to use. Once you have created all of these materials for one of your products or services, it's just a matter of replicating them for the next product and the next and so on. And don't feel that you have to do all of these things yourself either. Even if you don't have the money to outsource everything, use the barter system. Offer your services in the line of your expertise to someone that can provide you with what you need to be done. Are you a whiz at creating videos but hate writing ads? Make a trade with someone. And do you know where the very first place that you should look for these barterers? In your own affiliate force! Make sense? What better way to make them feel like they are part of your team and when someone does step up to the plate, let everyone else know about it! Praise them and give them credit for what they've done for you! By doing so, you'll not only ensure that they'll help you out again, but it will also encourage others to do the same. Let's face it, everyone likes to be congratulated for a job well done, not to mention seeing their name up in lights for all to see! In every case of the promotional materials provided in this report, you have been reminded to have your affiliates do some editing to make them their own. If you can't instruct them on how to do it, find someone that can. Offer them the opportunity to speak to your affiliates and offer whatever product or service they are selling. Co-opetition goes a long way in a situation like that. Tags: plr
