Turn off your radio full of suave commercialised songs and regenerate your senses done the true artistry of music made with your ears in bear in mind (toe-tapping beats courtesy of Eric Smith, featuring the aeriform voice of Shannon Alexander) 12 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: Pop Crossover, ELECTRONIC: Dance The Ultimate Illusion of Privacy Songs Details: Adrenaline Sky formed a couple years after Eric Smith left decided to pursue his dream of an original band playing upbeat electronic music for people to dance to. He met up with Shannon Alexander by posting an online ad searching for singers up for something new to their local music scene, which was heavily into rock. This eclectic songwriting duo touches the hearts of fans across the world. To date, their music has reached the minds and ears of listeners ranging from Eastern Asia to Europe, India, Australia and the Americas. They're playing right now in college, independent and internet radio stations far from their homebase of Denver, Colorado. The release of "The Ultimate Illusion of Privacy" marks the broadening reach of Adrenaline Sky and will highlight their ability to touch a massive audience. When something is this good, the positive reaction is universal. Eric states "It's amazing. Each day, our music ends up being played somewhere in the world we never expected, and the feedback is always positive and encouraging. People tell us they love our music, and we can't get enough of it." Adrenaline Sky is always striving to do more so Shannon and Eric ask that you kindly tell others about their music and suggest any promotional tips or assistance to help them become more well-known. Advice and commentary is always welcome from fans.

 A song will speak to each heart differently but for the interest of fans, the following are descriptions of the meaning for the songwriters. Eric wrote Nozomi as an opener for this album to draw listeners in and to create a certain mood for the songs to follow. Shannon dedicates the song to a dear friend of hers who needed a bit of hope to carry her done the appearance of a dark journey ahead. Hope gives us strength. Pure was originally a rock song Eric created in a prior band. The transition into an upbeat dance tune is flawless. Eric wrote the lyrics with the theme of deception in bear in mind Knowing first hand what it's like to believe the lies even our closest friends might tell us. Beautiful Strings derived from an impromptu piano session where Eric realized there was something more to the arrangement of notes and that this could become a song. Shannon added the lyrics and melody. Upon first hearing this gorgeous piece she knew it was both sad and beautiful. She wrote the words about the wrongful imprisonment of Gerry Conlon.

 We've been compared to Delerium, Depeche Mode, and Garbage. Check out this review where we meet with ever more greatness. We're flattered by the company we're said to keep. We'll post more reviews as we receive them! "The Eurythmics perfected the formula: the dude who stands in back, tinkering with the equipment, fronted by a chanteuse oozing icy mystery. Eric Smith and Shannon Alexander play Dave and Annie in Adrenaline Sky -- a Denver duo whose full-length, The Ultimate Illusion of Privacy, hints at the Brit-pomp of the Eurythmics while slipping in slivers of trance and electro. Beneath all the layers of phaser and synth, Adrenaline Sky has some serious songwriting installed; Alexander's voice would be equally at home alongside an acoustic or enmeshed in Smith's cybernetic contraptions." -Jason Hellar -- The Westword
