Eric's anointed singing reaches his audience with sincerity as he proclaims the Gospel of Jesus Christ. When asked why he sings, he quickly responds, "God has given me a special gift of song to encourage and uplift people." This gift is evident in his first-released CD entitled, When God Says Enough, It's Enough. Eric was recently blessed to debut his second independent CD, God is Good, All the Time. Shortly after which, he opened for a concert in Atlanta, which featuring Smokie Norfolk and The Williams Brothers. Other recordings include Heritage of Faith (Babbie Mason), Keeping the Family Together and Seasons of Life (The Charles Westmoreland Chorale) and Judah 2003-Atlanta Compilation Inspirational Celebration of Praise (Ken Brooks). Eric's goal is to continue to touch hearts and souls as he sings from his heart. As he ministers in song, his purpose is to share God's love and kindness. His prayer is to bring souls close to God and to introduce God to those, who may not know his love. Eric and his wife Bridgett of twelve years have two beautiful children, Erika BriAunna age 8 and Joshua D'Angelo age 5, who actively support and uplift his special ministry.
