Two brothers, Paul and Phil Channon, Paul Quinton, later joined by Keith Ginn and Colin Loader. Yeah, we were young once !! After a margin of success and a number of recording sessions we went our separarte ways in the music business but, later in 2000, we all got back together for the fun of it. That margin of success the first time round started again, but due to personal committments, Paul Channon, had to leave. The remainder of the band rejigged some of the arrangements and booked some musicians and a recording studio and recorded the songs you hear on "Three-oh". Little did we know at the time but Bernie Torme, our co-producer/recording engineer/ex-guitarist with Gillan and Ozzy Osbourne/and just great guy, would be a big influence on the band. Paul Quinton and Bernie created the sounds and mixed the final master, sometimes with a bit of drama, as in the atmospheric mix on the last track but never lacking in sound ideas. So, we hope you all appreciate the time and effort put into writing aand creating the songs, recording to the finished product that we all hope you will enjoy.
