Glitchy, experimental electronic music that is both soothing and unsettling, familiar and foreign. 11 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: Experimental, ELECTRONIC: Glitch Details: Nectarine is uneasy music born from an uneasy mind. A bleeding heart liberal based in Houston, TX - Matthew Potter has been composing and recording experimental electronic music as both a reaction to and an escape from the current state of our nation. Built around computer generated beats and homemade circuit bent instruments, Nectarine's music is dense and complex, familiar and foreign. Glitchy beats collide with children's xylophones and broken toys to create a pastiche of sounds that has been called "paranoid", "chaotic" and "enticing" by listeners. Nectarine released its first demo EP, Parallelograms, via electronic download in December 2005, available for free at nectarineband.com. Matthew has completed work on a full length LP entitled ring.mod which is scheduled for release in early April 2007 on his own Savage Henry Records imprint and the track "Jail The Real Criminals" will be on a forthcoming compilation released by Houston-based Broken Levee Records. Nectarine is currently preparing ambient material for a split CD with TV Mind Control for Royal Rhino Flying Records scheduled for a late April/early May release and playing shows around the Houston/Austin area...
