Adult pop rock with progressive 80's tendencies for lovers of Queen, Styx or Kansas. 12 MP3 Songs
POP: Piano, ROCK: 80's Rock Details: Right after making their first recording as a band called 'Aviary' Brad left northeastern Washington and headed for Washington University in Seattle, WA with longtime friend, Paul Madden. Within the next few years, Aviary took on change of members, to eventually become the band that Brian Lane, manager of the progressive rock band Yes, would get signed to a recording deal with Epic Records. (*See Aviary complete history in a booklet that comes with the re-release of Aviary's Self Titled CD on Rewind Records a product of Sony Music Special Products). After touring, Brad and the band headed for England to record a second, unreleased album. Lacking promotion support, the band was eventually dropped from the label. After seeing an Aviary video, Bestall and Reynolds (Air Supply) Management team contacted Brad for a solo management deal. In 1982 Brad recorded his solo album, 'Colours', on MCA Records with producer John Hug. 'Colours', was released on a technical basis only and received no promotion. Various record companies are considering the idea of a 'real' release of this beautiful album. Also that same year, Brad flew to Australia to work on film music for the movie, 'Captain Invincible' starring Alan Arkin. In 1983 Brad became a staff writer with Screen Gems for 2 years. After the management team of Bestall Reynolds (Air Supply) split up, Brad teamed up with 3 guys from the band OXO and in 1984 the band recorded a demo tape which started a large bidding war amongst most of the major record labels. Lack of management caused the band to lose those deals and eventually break up. In 1984 Brad played stand-in keyboards for twosome Wang Chung performing on Solid Gold, American Bandstand and other television shows. From 1985 until 1993 Brad continued writing songs, and started a few Los Angeles bands, one band he originated was the band, 'Artica'. In 1993 Brad moved to Texas and started writing and recording this new CD 'Through Another Door'. New Releases Include

'Through Another Door' and Aviary CD 'Ambition' with more CD Releases in the works for 2004. Visit his web site at: bradlove.com
