Writing and recording these ten songs has been a spiritual and emotional road trip. I took the songs and stripped them down to their very core. I wanted simplicity and immediacy between the listener and myself.

Details: Bruce Springsteens album Nebraska was a guiding light for Chris. Structured songs of this nature are rarely stripped down to their very essence and recorded with such honesty and immediacy. I wanted to make an album with the same kind of spirit as Nebraska. The story behind this new album is best summed up in Chris's own words. "Writing and recording these ten songs has been a spiritual and emotional road trip. I took the ten songs and stripped them down to their very core. The reason was simple. I wanted to return to a directness and intimacy with the listener and also with myself" Chriss music has a literate quality within its sub text and has recently been compared to auteurs such as Harry Nilsson and Jim Webb. At the same time there is a pop sensibility which embraces echoes of the Beatles, early McCartney through to the angular experimentation and charm of Badly Drawn Boy and Bright Eyes.

Biography : Chris is a self taught musician. He learned to play guitar and piano with one purpose in mind. His total passion is writing songs, followed closely by a love of playing live. Based in London he has been the main singer and song writer of two British bands. To find greater expression Chris decided to go solo and set about recording his debut album This Atlantic Low. Comprising of eleven songs and three instrumental pieces the album is based on characters from the Martin Amis novel London Fields. This Atlantic Low has enjoyed considerable critical success. Tracks such as My Strength My Weakness, Epitaph and The Morning Light have also been heavily play listed on radio in Ireland, the UK and the US where Chris has a rapidly growing fan base.
