Having played in several bands over the years, at 27, Crawford is an accomplished singer/songwriter from Glasgow, Scotland and ready to fly solo. I class myself as a folk singer because I sing about the world around me the life I lead - but its not traditional folk.. His solo career began in November 2005 with his first official gig gaining him entrance into the Scottish Final of the Emergenza European Acoustic Competition and resulted in a top ten placing among the best unsigned acoustic performers in the country. Since then he has performed throughout Scotland at venues such as Barfly, The Liquid Ship, Blackfriars, Box Capitol in Glasgow, through to Whistle Binkies in Edinburgh, Behind the Wall in Falkirk and several gigs in Stirling and Inverness. His travels have taken him to performances at the Music

Conservatory in Joensuu, Finland and several gigs in San Diego, California. In January 2007 he re-entered the Emergenza Acoustic Competition and achieved 3rd place in the Scottish Final, gaining a support slot in the forthcoming Classic Grand event in Glasgow later this year. Around the same time, he began working with his non-exclusive booking agents for the north of Scotland, Inverness-based Rock is Religion. In September 2007 he played his first festival - Retrofest at Culzean Castle, Ayrshire. While studying for an HND in Music Business Management at Stow College (Glasgow), he befriended a talented young audio engineering student, Al Wright, whose vision of Scheme Records appealed and they soon built up a mutual understanding to help each other in all ways possible. His self-funded debut EP Stand Alone is to be released on 29th October 2007 in conjunction with Scheme Records.
