I would be naked if I didn't wear clothes. Rock and folk. Quirky lyrics: profound, playful, intense. Social comment and personal quest. 10 MP3 Songs ROCK: Acoustic, FOLK: Modern Folk Details: Dan Steven is a singer/songwriter from London, Ontario but he previously lived in Chatham and Peterborough, Ontario as well as in Michigan and Indiana. He has busked on the streets of Chatham, London, Toronto, Halifax, Vancouver, and San Francisco. Dan has played his guitar at the edge of the Grand Canyon, on the sands of Lake Erie, beneath the stars of El Pismo, CA, and on piers overlooking the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. When he wasn't writing music, Dan was working at street missions in Halifax, Montreal, and Toronto. Dan's experiences as a street musician fuel a driving creative force, influenced by his deep faith in Jesus Christ, his search for a spiritual self, social justice, drama, friends and family, Shakespeare, van Gogh, sunflowers, poetry, Star Wars, Tim Horton's coffees, the Blackhawks, loves (and loves lost), and the chorale at Trent University. Dan's lyrics expose his skill and passion for crafting musical messages for the listener. Thoughtful and honest observations of daily living and the struggles of people to find peace bring an immediate connection between Dan and his audience. His songs blend wit, spirituality, and funky folk-rock, prompting an apt description of Dan as "the wacky singer/prophet from London". Whether it's heard at a campfire, a coffee house, in a club, or on the street, Dan's music touches people. Live performances move easily from sharing laughs with the audience to expressing the most intimate hopes and fears, and this transparency makes the music real. Finding the right producer, Dan has taken the artistic leap into the recording studio. The resulting magic has created the release of a sparkling debut CD from the new Canadian alternative recording artist, Dan Steven.
