New twists on Celtic tradition; intense, soulful, rocking versions of session tunes and original songs. 14 MP3 Songs FOLK: Power-folk, WORLD: Celtic Details: Album Description Celtic Crescent is a collection of Celtic-theme material from Emerald Rose. It contains a selection of previously released material from the albums "Bending Tradition" and "Fire In The Head" as well as some new recordings. Included on this production are a bluesy version of the Scots classic "Loch Lomond" and an upbeat, danceable rendition of the Celtic classic, "Wild Mountain Thyme." Artist/Band Bio Emerald Rose is a Celtic folk rock band from Georgia (USA) with a rich, driving world beat sound. Guitars, bass, percussion, and pennywhistle are blended with 4-part harmony vocals, giving a versatile sound adaptable to everything from Jacobite battle songs to original anthems. The band is currently a full-time touring ensemble, performing live shows from New York City to South Florida and beyond. Emerald Rose have been featured performers at some of the South's finest venues, including the Variety Playhouse in Atlanta. The band has been mainstage performers at a growing number of science fiction and fantasy conventions around the country, including I*Con in New York, Galacticon in Chattanooga and DragonCon in Atlanta. Their performance at DragonCon won the band a unique opportunity. They have been invited to perform as featured artists at the cast party for the Lord of the Rings: The Two Towers movie cast and crew following the 2003 Academy Awards presentation. Band Members Brian (Logan) Sullivan - lead guitar, vocal, mandola Arthur Hinds - vocal, guitar, bodhran Larry Morris - pennywhistle, percussion, vocal Clyde Gilbert - bass, percussion, vocal
