Dramatic readings of creepy classics by Edgar Allan Poe, HP Lovecraft, more, with sound effects music. 13 MP3 Songs SPOKEN WORD: Audiobook, SPOKEN WORD: Radio Drama Show all album songs: Silent Harvest Songs Details: Every October, Im invited to schools and libraries to share tales of madmen and the macabre, stories of suspense and the supernatural. Titles include The Raven, The Monkeys Paw, An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, and The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, and authors range from Edgar Allan Poe and H.P. Lovecraft to more modern Alfred Hitchcock favorites like Roald Dahl and Jack Ritchie. Some are about hired killers and mundane family fear, others are about bogeymen or vampires. I call these storytimes Creepy Classics. On this CD, Volume 1, I collect four of the Creepy Classics stories Ive told the most dozens of performances of each. You get Poes The Tell-Tale Heart, which probably needs no introduction; W.W. Jacobs The Monkeys Paw, my favorite example of the warning against getting what you wish for; Lovecrafts tale of what happened to a callous caretaker when he and a dozen coffins were locked In the Vault (possibly my favorite on this disc); and The Open Window, a brief and somewhat light-hearted ghost story from Saki (who also wrote Tobermory, if that rings a bell). These recordings feature a host of sound effects and background music that are not usually heard in my live performances and, as with my Christmas Carol CD, thanks for much of the recording and engineering brilliance goes to Bob Savage. Bob also contributed the original music featured in Monkeys Paw. Thanks for listening, and as I always say at the end of my storytimes Keep reading! Storyteller Grant Fitch has entertained all ages with children's fables, folk tales, scary stories, and classic literature.
