She had previously had 5 chart topping songs in NZ Music Charts which earned her a 'NZ Music Award in 1997 for most Promising Female Artist. Her independantly produced album sold 250,000 copies worldwide throughout the Polynesian communities. A project she says was inspired by her culture and heritage. She has gone from mainstream to world music and doesnt like being defined in a particular music category. "It takes away the true meaning of what music is really supposed to be about." She is recording her 2nd bi-lingual album both in English and Samoan with a style similiar to India Irie Lauryn Hill. This album was recorded in 5 weeks in a little shanty studio on an island no-ones heard of except when they RECRUIT N.F.L PLAYERS, Samoans are know for their massive physiques strength and athletic ability and music of course.
