He also has performed for major events such as; the Winter Music Conference 2006 in South Beach, Miami, with world renown house dj Dj Mark Grant, Milwaukee's Summer fest, and at the Petrillo Band Shell for the Taste of Chicago. Russoul was declared the Chicago Idol winner by celebrity judges: Kanye West, Common, No ID, Selena Johnson, Tiffany Green and contest sponsor, Elroy Smith. Grammy Award winner Kanye West produced the song, Second Chance on Russoul. He is also featured on the recent Stellar Award CD entitled Mark Hubbard and the United Voices for Christ Blessin Waitin on Me. Attending church, practicing piano, and singing created the foundation for Russoul's talent. His mother was the Minister of Music at several different churches, and his father a Deacon. He attended Chicago Public Schools, participated in school choirs, and he loved performing in school plays. After watching a Stevie Wonder concert on television, Russoul began to gravitate towards singing and playing the piano. At the age of ten, Russoul attended a concert given by The Soul Children of Chicago, under the leadership of Walter Whitman, and an indelible impression was made upon him. After auditioning and becoming a member of the Soul Children, he continued to grow musically and spiritually. His passion and drive for singing was enhanced as he watched other soloists perform. The Soul Children traveled extensively. A new precedence was set when the Soul Children journeyed to California to accompany Gladys Knight on the Motown 30th Anniversary Show. This experience enabled him to realize that he wanted to be versatile, and perform in various venues. Upon graduating from Whitney Young High

School, he was encouraged to major in business at the University of Illinois. He later transferred to Clark Atlanta University, and majored in music. His unique voice and style of singing was known around the university campus. He earned a B. A. in music and he graduated with honors. In addition to being the voice teacher, song writer and producer for young Maestro Harrell, Young Simba in Disneys Chicago production of the Lion King, he has taught music in the Chicago Public Schools, and he has piano and voice students. russoul.com
