Details: Montana native Bethany Dick is an amazingly talented singer, songwriter and musician. A competitive fiddler throughout her youth, she won several major titles including a National Championship in 2001. Her first album, The Beat of My Heart, was released in 1998. The self-penned 'Come the Morning', from that album, received significant airplay on bluegrass and Americana radio across the nation, making it to #2 on the Bluegrass Gospel Charts. In 2000, Bethany moved to Nashville, Tennessee, and released her second album, the critically acclaimed This Beautiful Life, which she co-produced with award winning guitarist Bryan Sutton. In 2002, Bethany hit the road running with platinum selling artist Sara Evans. Her harmony vocals matched with her instrumental versatility on fiddle, guitar, and mandolin carried her over to performing with country music mainstay Pam Tillis. Nowadays, Bethany can be found playing her own original music with her high energy band. She effortlessly blends the rooted sound of bluegrass with a heartfelt, contemporary vocal and intimate songwriting. Bethany's unique take on acoustic music combined with her experience on the road makes audiences coast to coast stand up and take notice. -
