Ambient, groove, treated trumpet. Produced in a detailed, subtle and fresh way. 10 MP3 Songs

ELECTRONIC: Ambient, JAZZ: Jazz Fusion Details: Transmit is a manufactured audio production by Werner Hasler (Switzerland) and Sunao Inami (Japan): Sunao and I met for maybe ten minutes in real life, somewhere in a club. We were introduced, had a chat, split with an agreement to exchange and never met again. The music you hear was uploaded and transmit. We did not talk about it, neither we had any common musical plans. The same file only went one way so there was no control about what happened with it later. I downloaded sounds, soundscapes and half finished tunes of his and uploaded my work. After Downloading I listened, then cut and shaped, took extracts and looped parts. I added my own sounds from different sources as diverse treatments of my trumpet, samplings and analogue synthesizing. I created arrangements by playing with colours of sounds, cutting some of them and putting the whole thing in a frame of rhythm and melody, or using it as a frame for additional rhythms and melody. The completely unguided and unrestricted use of Sunaos very personal, though for me unfamiliar ideas was a very refreshing way of working. A work with an existing personality yet virtual partner. Pure input, no restriction. Transmit is the result. Werner Hasler trumpet, arrangement, sounds and soundscapes Sunao Inami uploads of sounds, soundscapes and half finished tunes There was more than two years of production time. Sometimes days, sometimes a week sometimes hours. Sunao produced the recording 'Delayed' (electr-ohm released in Japan 2004 using sounds and beats of Rick Walker, Roberto Zorzi, Slacknote and Werner Hasler)
