Details: Joe Walmsley was born and raised in Liverpool England and began playing guitar and singing at the age of thirteen. He started out playing Beatles covers but it wasn't long before he began writing his own material. He went on to form a number of bands in his Native Liverpool which was and still is a testing training ground for any musician. He later performed all across Europe and also appeared on TV and Radio back in the UK as well as Theaters. In 2001 he felt like a change and after attending some auditions he accepted a position in the Cruise Line Industry, Joe worked on the High seas for five years as Production Show Vocalist as well as having his own solo show and was promoted to Cruise Director where he managed the whole Entertainment department onboard. One of his many ports of call was Port Everglades in Fort Lauderdale Florida. This is where he discovered a little Irish Pub called Waxy O Connors and it became his favourite spot when he had time off the ship. he bacame friends with the owners and after experiencing his musical talent and charismatic personality they offered him an in House Entertainment Position at their new venue on the San Antonio River Walk in Texas. This came at a perfect time as he was itching to get back to what he did best, playing music, so he hung up his Tuxedo and went back to his Jeans and Baggy shirts. Joe is currently performing five nights a week at Waxy's as well as doing gigs in Austin. Tags: pop
