The newest dance single from the producers of "Kiss The Sky" (Mike Rizzo and Mike "G" Guerriero), featuring remixes by Klubjumpers and Tommy Boy 10 MP3 Songs POP: Today's Top 40, POP: with Electronic Production Details: Adam Barta is a breakout artist on the pop/dance scene from Bronx, NY. With a humble beginning doing musical theatre and being lead singer in a boyband, his solo music career took off in 2005 with his hit single Dirty Girls, which was on Promo Only's mainstream club series for March of 2006 and received airplay on stations across the nation, including Sirius Satellite Radio, 97.1 WMPH, WFHN Fun 107.1, and many more FM stations. The Armory Projects remix was heard at top dance clubs around the country. He also collaborated with The Verve Pipes Brad Vander Ark to do an unreleased dance remake of the Olivia Newton John classic, Physical. In Spring 2006 he recorded a new dance single, I Wanna Hold You, written by Mike Guerriero (who also wrote the hits How Can I Be Falling Kiss the Sky) and produced by Mike Rizzo (WKTU). The song was remixed by Klubjumpers, Tom E. Boy and Diego Garcia. It debuted on Adrenalin on Sirius (The Beat, channel 36) in September and is slated for release on Promo Only's mainstream club CD for November. It is currently creeping towards a breakout on the Billboard charts. 2006 also saw him sign with EsNtion Records to record a new dance single with DJ and producer, Russ Harris (Drums in the Club). Mynts Kim Sozzi has called Adams music great, and he has been written up by HX Magazine saying a new pop [artist] started his own path to stardom.
