After high school, this vivacious blond traveled and performed with her own group on the hotel and lounge circuit between Chicago and the West Coast including the Showrooms of Reno, Tahoe and Las Vegas, Nevada. When she wasn't performing on stage, Geri could be found in recording studios in and around Chicago where she became a most-in-demand singer for numerous national and local commercials including the The Yellow Pages, Manpower, State Farm Insurance, Miller Beer, and United Airlines to name a few. During this time Geri was also very active in musical theatre working in dinner theatres throughout the Midwest and was featured in productions of West Side Story, The Me Nobody Knows, Oliver, Charlie Brown, Fiddler on the Roof, and Grease. After leaving Milwaukee Geri became the featured singer with the Ray Anthony Orchestra, and later moved to California joining Tony Orlando's new show. After a year of travel that kept her away from her family, she settled into the LA music scene singing backup for Donny and Marie Osmond, England Dan John Ford Coley, and composers Bob Alcivar and Quincy Jones. Geri recorded the vocal song-track for Rita Moreno in the PBS series Tales of The Hollywood Hills and is a featured soloist on three albums produced for the Equity Fights AIDS Foundation, namely Sing Before Breakfast, Keep Your Undershirt On, and Early Kern. As a singer she was the opening act for Bob Hope, the late George Burns, and comedian Tom Dreesen. She later went on to Broadway where she won the coveted role of Marilyn Monroe in the production of MARILYN: An American Fable which led to her one woman show Marilyn Monroe thru the Eyes of Norma Jean. Curvy Women Are Here To Stay supports all of those women who feel left-out because their bodies don't conform to today's fashion standards.
